When you do not need Study Permit

As a rule, in order to go to study in Canada, a foreign student needs to get permission to study. However, in some cases, foreign citizens can study in Canada without permission to study.

Short-term training in Canada

If the duration of your training program is less than 6 months, you have the right to learn without learning permission. Study can be like Full Time and Part Time, but you must have time to finish it for six months. It should be noted that short-term studies exempts you solely on obtaining permission to work. Temporary visa you still get obliged if it is required to citizens of your country.

Moreover, without permission to study, you do not have the right to work in Canada in the learning process.

If you plan to work in Canada in the learning process or intend to continue learning after the completion of the short course, the Immigration service of Canada recommends getting permission to study before arriving in Canada.

Minor children in Canada

Juvenile children living in Canada have the right to study in general educational institutions without permission to study. This exception concerns only children of foreign students who have permission to study, or foreign workers who have permission to work.

Family members and home staff diplomats

Family members of diplomats and their home staff can learn from Canada without permission to study.

Foreign servicemen in Canada

Servicemen of foreign army forces, which are located on the territory of Canada for the State Agreement can be trained without permission to study.
